

When You Buy Poultry Feeds

Don't make it guess-work. You can eliminate the risk by our iron-clad guarantee. The money paid for Purina Chicken Chowder will be refunded if hens, when fed Purina Chicken Chowder with Purina Scratch Feed—the perfect balance for laying hens—do not lay more eggs than when fed with any other ration.

Most hens get too much grain, a large part of which goes into surplus yolks, which the hen absorbs. This makes the hen too fat and cuts down egg production. 100 lbs. of wheat, corn, oats and barley contain elements for 224 yolks, but only 154 whites. The feed of a laying hen should supply elements for both whites and yolks in equal quantity. Purina rations are rightly balanced. Based on Experiment Station tests, Purina Feeds contain the following:

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The last day of the year brought the announcement of one of the most important real estate transactions, outside of transfers of mill property, consummated here in many years—the sale by William S. Brown of the Orpheum theater to John P. Lewis, who has directed the house for the past six years.

Mr. Lewis, in purchasing, acted for the Lewis-Brown Theater circuit, of which he is the head. This circuit operates the Princess theater at Bristol, Conn., and the Palace at Rockville in addition to the Orpheum theater here and negotiations are now underway for still another theater in a New England city.

Since leasing the Orpheum theater six years ago Mr. Lewis has made his headquarters in Danielson and has met with deserved success, winning the good will of the public through his courtesy and his willingness to co-operate with the public in many ways, especially during the war when the house always was available for benefits and other entertainments and meetings intended to further the national program at the time.

Mr. Lewis said Wednesday afternoon that he will make no changes in the theater at present, but later will do some redecoration of the building, as well as making other desired improvements.

William S. Brown, who disposed of the theater to the Lewis-Brown circuit, is one of a very small group of Danielson business men who, in the past decade, have had sufficient vision and courage to invest in Danielson's future, and Mr. Brown has with the close of 1919 received some of the financial rewards that always accrue to those who combine and abiding faith, combined with good business judgment, in the future of their own home town.

While no figures were given out as to the price at which the theater sold, there is every reason to believe that the transaction tops all others that have occurred in the Danielson real estate market, aside from sales of mill property, in the past dozen years or longer.

It was only eight years ago that Mr. Brown, believing in Danielson's future and fully alive to the opportunities that were then really opening for motion picture exhibitors, backed his judgment that a theater in Danielson would be a paying investment by taking what had for years been the big Attawapung hotel stables, moving the structure from one site on the hotel property, which he then owned to another site, on Center street and converting it into a theater. Mr. Brown tells his friends today that he risked his financial credit and gave a life-time of savings on the venture, but he felt that he was right and with his characteristic abundance of energy and executive ability, he has been able to carry out his plan, not only to build a theater, but to carry it to completion.

The years have proved that his judgment was correct, and Danielson, which today would feel lost without its theater, has been a success story in its initiative and acknowledges its indebtedness to him for many pleasant evenings at the theater, and for all of those that are to come.

It is an interesting story, out of all of my real estate holdings, Mr. Brown said Wednesday afternoon in discussing the theater deal. "This means that I will soon be rid of my fine stock farm with its herd of prize-winning steers, at Central Village, and the six dwellings that I own on Water street. When I have disposed of these I will give my attention to a business program that I will put into operation here."

Mr. Brown is one of the most successful and daring of the Danielson business men of the past quarter century. Starting out only with his health and strength and an extraordinary good business head, he has, despite all handicaps, accumulated a comfortable fortune and is still in the full flower of manhood.

His recipe for success is: WORK (all capital letters) and use your head. He applies it. No man works harder than Mr. Brown, and he regularly indulges in the most arduous and menial labors attendant upon running a big stock farm.

Though he has been living at the Shepherd hill farm at Central Village for several years, he is always regarded as a Danielson man, for he spent the greater part of his life here and has made his real success here.

At the opening of this year, he will receive an open-hearted and general expression of the season's wish—A Happy and Prosperous New Year!

Miss Mary Dexter, one of Danielson's oldest residents and a woman of a great many virtues, died Wednesday morning at her home on Broad street. She had been an invalid for years and for the past two years her condition, at various times, has apparently been critical as to practically decide her fate. Yet, notwithstanding her advanced years and her fast ebbing strength, she rallied from various dangerous periods of her illness and was spared to live practically through to the close of the year.

Miss Dexter was born at Elmville, the daughter of Jonathan and Sophia Poole Dexter, Sept. 9, 1858, her family having been identified with Kil-

Fire that broke out just after the noon hour Wednesday totally destroyed the E. Percy Ward home on the Senexet road, in the town of Woodstock. The origin of the fire had not been definitely established up to late Wednesday afternoon.

The loss, which is estimated as high as $10,000, includes practically all of the furnishings of the home, which had been redecorated and remodeled, the work being completed only a very short time ago.

Telephone calls were sent out to all of the neighborhood to assist in fighting the fire and a call was sent to the fire department, but the fire was so intense that it was impossible to save the home.

The Wards are residents of Newark, N. J., and have important insurance interests.

Dr. Harry W. Sharpe disposed of Wednesday, one of the interesting appointments of chief engineer of the fire department. Dr. Sharpe said positively that he would not accept the appointment, but is appreciative of the good will of his friends in suggesting him for an appointment that would carry with so much responsibility.

The funeral of Mrs. Fred Lahaie of Danielson was held Wednesday morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Durocher, in the town of Woodstock. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. The bearers were Moses Durocher, Eugene Durocher and Edmund Durocher, brothers of the deceased. Charles M. J. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Secretary Charles L. Torrey of the Putnam town school committee, also a state member of the Connecticut Education Association, announced Wednesday that he had arranged with Dr. A. C. Fones to lecture in the assembly hall here Jan. 13 in the interest of the dental hygiene movement that is attracting such widespread interest among the educators of Connecticut. This lecture will be given at 8 o'clock and will be of interest to those who have even the slightest interest in the future welfare of hundreds of the school children of this town.

Care of the teeth has rightfully come to be regarded as an essential to good health. This fact, taken with the very great neglect of children's teeth, will strikingly be brought to the attention of those who hear the lecture planned to be given in this city.

It was the experience of local draft board that during the war that many registered men were unable to pass the selective service law requirements because of the fact that their teeth were in such a bad condition that they were unable to perform the duties of the service. The condition of their teeth had been so bad that they were unable to perform the duties of the service.

Captain J. B. Bulger of the police department received a visitation from a Massachusetts man, a freemason, who told him that there is a hidden away in this city a child that was kidnapped three years ago. The captain heard the story with interest, but after listening to the story he decided that the child is not here. The man who told the story was a freemason and he said that he had been taken away by a woman who had cared for him from serving in the army. The man who told the story was a freemason and he said that he had been taken away by a woman who had cared for him from serving in the army.

Of special local interest is the announcement that Wallace Stearns, formerly a Pomfret resident and later a resident of this city, is scheduled to deliver at an early date before the Philological society of Philadelphia a paper on the subject of Stonehenge. Revisited. At present Rev. Mr. Stearns is a member of the faculty of Bucknell college.

The death of a local woman occurred at Danielson Wednesday in her 81st year, was a member of the committee of visitors of the Windham county temperance home for children in the town of Putnam. She was a woman who gave much time and thought to the work, always in the interest of the little people who came under her ling's history for many more than a hundred years.

Her education was obtained in Kilbury's schools and she has always been a devoted and efficient teacher. She was a woman of great character and of high moral standards. She was a woman who gave much time and thought to the work, always in the interest of the little people who came under her

She was the last of her family and had outlived practically all the relatives and friends of her childhood. Edward Dexter, who erected the Dexter building on Main street, next to the town hall building, was a brother of Miss Dexter's.

David Hale Fanning of Worcester, a cousin, is Miss Dexter's nearest living relative and he is a resident of Providence, is a distant cousin of Miss Dexter.

Good news for the theater devotees. The Larned company, which has played so successfully at the Orpheum theater this week, has extended its engagement here so as to play on Friday and Saturday matinees and evenings.

Plainfield-Brooklyn and Nutmegs-Connecticut mills will furnish the big double basketball program at the town hall this (Thursday) evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Davis returned from their wedding trip.

Late trains on Wednesday inconvenienced those who were anxious to get away for the holiday.

A number of Danielson folks watched the old year out and the new year in at the lodge rooms in Putnam, while other local members of the order went to Woodstock to say goodbye to the old year and "Hello" to the new.

Mrs. Charles T. Thayer and son, Edward, of Putnam, were visitors with relatives in Danielson on Wednesday.

Leonard P. Morrison has returned from a visit with his mother at Attawapung.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Wood, married in New York Dec. 22, left for New York, en route to Akron, after visiting with relatives here.

Miss Olive Kent of Elmville and Floyd Nettleton of Central Village are to be married at Elmville January 29.
